ALKA-SELTZER is unusually effective in the relief of Headache because its analgesic (pain-relieving content) is made more positive by alkaline buffers. Alka-Seltzer being a combination of pain-relieving and alkalizing ingredients has gained wide usage and popularity for the relief of Acid Indigestion, Cold Symptoms, "Morning After" misery and Moderate Pains. "Little Stories for Bedtime" by Thornton W. Burgess

BOBBY COON'S CLOSE CALL

A CLOSE call means a narrow escape, a very narrow escape. And that is what Bobby Coon had when he tried to cross from the top of the big chestnut tree to the top of the big pine tree. You see Bobby's mind was so full of the idea of getting into that big pine tree that he forgot how bright the light from Mistress Moon was, so bright that, of course, the hunters at the foot of the tree would see him the very minute he showed himself.

He was half way along the great branch that reached over to the big pine tree when he remembered the moonlight, and just as he remembered he heard a great shout from the hunters down below and he knew that they saw him. It was of no use to turn back now, so he did the best thing he could do—hurried ahead as fast as ever he could.

Bobby jumped for an outreaching branch of the big pine tree.

Bang! Bobby had almost reached the big pine tree when the terrible gun carried by one of the hunters startled everybody in the Green Forest with its dreadful roar. It frightened poor Bobby so that he almost lost his grip. He heard a sharp, whistling noise. He didn't know exactly what it was, though he knew that it had something to do with that terrible gun. The fact is it was the shot tearing up through the air close to Bobby that made that whistling sound. At the same time something stung him sharply, so sharply that he almost cried out. Three of the shots had hit him, but because he was so fat they had not been able to go through him and do him any real harm.

With a little choking sob in his throat Bobby jumped for an outreaching branch of the big pine tree. It was lucky for him, very lucky, indeed, that he jumped just when he did. Yes, sir, it was lucky for Bobby Coon that he jumped just when he did, because—well because just as he jumped there was another dreadful bang from that terrible gun, and this time the shot struck the very spot Bobby had just left.

Bobby scrambled into the big pine tree, and there he drew a long breath. He knew that there he could not be seen easily from the ground because of the broad, protecting branches of the pine. He looked across to the big chestnut tree, and there he saw Farmer Brown's Boy just starting to climb down. It was his climbing of that tree that had forced Bobby to try its fat neighbor pine tree. Bobby felt in his heart that he hated Farmer Brown's Boy, and yet he had a queer feeling that somehow it was because of Farmer Brown's Boy that he was alive that very minute. And the fact is, it was. You see, just as the hunter with the terrible gun had put it to his shoulder to shoot at Bobby Coon, Farmer Brown's Boy had yelled, and that yell had so startled the hunter with the gun that he had missed. If it hadn't been for that yell from Farmer Brown's Boy there would be no more stories about Bobby Coon.

Farmer Brown's Boy pretended that he had yelled because he was excited and had seen Bobby trying to escape, but Mistress Moon looking down and seeing all that was going on, knew better. She had seen Farmer Brown's Boy smile, and it was a smile good to see, when Bobby had safely reached the big pine tree. All the other hunters looked disappointed, but Farmer Brown's Boy didn't, and because he didn't he took great care to keep in the shadows where the others would not notice his face. Bobby didn't know it and the others didn't know it, but all the time someone was doing his best to help Bobby Coon, and that someone was Farmer Brown's Boy.

UNIVERSALLY POPULAR

The "Sunday School Lesson" published each week in this newspaper has been adopted by thousands of church instructors throughout the United States as a regular part of their weekly work.

It is a review and exposition of the international lesson for each week, prepared by Dean Harold L. Lundquist of the Moody Bible Institute at Chicago, a recognized leader in the nation's church work. Dean Lundquist has been active in teaching youthful groups for years, thereby acquiring an insight into the needs of these people for understandable explanations of Bible passages.

In view of his accomplishments in church work, it is not surprising that Dean Lundquist's exposition of the weekly Sunday School lesson is being used in almost every community of the nation. As teacher or student you will find it extremely helpful.

INTELLIGENCE TESTS

This illustration shows a boy peering through a hole in a fence, while a man standing on a box looks over the fence.

Two questions are asked below concerning the picture. Allow three minutes to select the proper answer from those suggested.

1. Although the man is taller than the boy, his actual length in the picture is less than that of the boy because
(a) his long trousers make him look taller;
(b) he is much farther away from the observer;
(c) the height of the box is added to his height.

2. The upper and lower lines of the fence seem to approach each other because
(a) they are parallel;
(b) otherwise the vertical lines on the fence would make it appear to lean outward;
(c) the fence is above the sidewalk.

(Public Ledger—WNU Service.)

Answers to the Tests
(1) b, (2) a.

DIXIE

A name for the Southern states.

The exact origin of the name Dixie is not known.

One theory is that it is a shortened form of Mason and Dixon's line, a survey that marked part of the boundary between the "free" and the slave states.

A likelier theory is that the term originated in Louisiana before the Civil war. The Citizens' Bank of Louisiana issued a $10 bill on which was engraved a large DIX, the French word for ten. The bills were widely circulated throughout the Southern states and were called "dixies," hence, the South was known as the land of Dixies, or Dixie Land.

The song "Dixie" was written on a drear winter morning in 1859, when Daniel Decatur Emmett, song writer and originator of the "Negro minstrel" show, sat shivering in his cheerless New York lodgings, wishing that he was "away down South in Dixie."

NO child deserves the handicap of defective eyesight. You owe it to your child to be sure that he is not suffering with an unsuspected but harmful deficiency of vision. Many children go for years with headaches, cross dispositions, and poor school marks without their parents even knowing the source of the trouble—defects of vision that could easily be corrected. Give your child an eye break at success—have his eyes examined before school starts.
